FORMER LOCAL MAN DISAPPEARS

Sterling P. Green of Greenfield, Until Two Years Ago a Resident Here, Leaves Mysteriously.

RELATIVES HERE CONCERNED

He Takes Razor and Has Been Carrying Rope For Several Days
—May be Demented.

Brothers in this county of Sterling P. Green of Greenfield, until two years ago a resident of this city, to-day received word of the mysterious disappearance of Mr. Green Thursday. No word has been received from him since Thursday morning, and fear is expressed by relatives that he may have harmed himself.

There is basis for this fear in the fact that Mr. Green has been acting queerly for several days, and for the last week has been carrying a rope around in his pocket. The Greenfield Reporter says that his razor is missing from its accustomed place.

Mr. Green has suffered with nervous trouble before. Several years ago he became demented and was sent to a private sanatorium at Oxford, Ohio, for treatment. He recovered and was pronounced cured by the physicians.

Mr. Green was last seen at nine-thirty o'clock Thursday morning, when he left his home. He conducts a day line in Greenfield, and before leaving the house, informed his wife that he intended to go to the depot to assist in unloading a car of coal. He never appeared at the depot. He was seen by two people, so far as could be learned in Greenfield, after he left his home.

John Green, of Sexton, a brother of the missing man, received the news this morning from the anxious wife in Greenfield by telephone. It was the first Rush county relatives had heard of Mr. Green's strange actions. They are very much concerned for him and fear that he has harmed himself.

The Greenfield man has another brother in this county, Arlie D. Green, living on rural five southwest of the city. The missing man moved from this city to Greenfield two years ago. During his residence here he was employed on the L. E. & W. railroad as a section hand for a number of years. He resided on a Rush county farm before moving to Greenfield.

The Greenfield police were notified yesterday of the disappearance, and every possible effort is being made to find Mr. Green. A description of Mr. Green as he appeared and was dressed when he left his home, is as follows:

Five feet six inches in height; weight about 190 lbs.; 50 years old; bald and gray; wore lace shoes, two pairs of socks, tan under blue yarn; blue shirt, gray coat and vest, light soft hat, light blue striped overalls over light trousers. He was smooth shaven. He has several distinctive marks on his body. There is a large scar on his right foot and also a scar on his arm, caused by a pitchfork wound which required many stitches to close.

In addition to the two brothers in this county, Mr. Green has a sister in Connersville, one at Kennard in Henry county, a brother at Hamilton, Ohio, and two brothers at Hammond, Indiana.

SUIT ON NOTES.

Newcastle Courier: John Brenneman has entered suit against Warner Schmidt, formerly of this city and now of Rushville, and his wife, Mrs.
Mildred B. Schmidt, to collect on notes and to foreclose a mortgage.
Judgment in the sum of $125 is demanded.

FALLS VICTIM TO DROPSY

Mrs. Sarah J. Adams Leaves a Daughter in This County.

Mrs. Sarah J. Adams, age sixty-two years, mother of Mrs. Jefferson Lantz of this county, died suddenly at her home in Shelby county yesterday of dropsy. The funeral will be held in the Shelbyville Methodist church Sunday afternoon at one o'clock, conducted by the Rev. Gier-luf Jensen. Burial will be made in a cemetery near Shelbyville. Besides her husband and daughter, Mrs. Adams is survived by five sisters: Mrs. Nancy Moore, of Rays Crossing; Mrs. Charles McDonald, Mrs. Catherine Hill, and Mrs. Alice Brown, all of Shelby county and Mrs. Liberty Berry of Indianapolis.

THERE ARE STILL 2 SUPERINTENDENTS

Frank Brown Serves Written Notice
on A. T. Mahin to Turn Over Keys But Latter Refuses.

MANY LETTERS ARE RECEIVED

The city water and light plant still has two superintendents. A. T. Mahin has shown no inclination to relinquish his hold on the job until his year is up and Frank Brown, the superintendent who was appointed by two members of the council last Tuesday night, is on the job. Mr. Brown served written notice on Mr. Mahin in person yesterday. He called at the deposed superintendent's home and presented him with a statement which he asked Mr. Mahin to sign, the force of which would have been for him to admit the action of the council. Mr. Mahin refused to sign the paper or give up the keys.

A request has been made to the postoffice that all mail concerning the city's water and light business be delivered to the plant. Charles A. Frazee, postmaster said that mail addressed to the superintendent of the water and light plant would be delivered to the plant as had been done, but that mail addressed to Mr. Mahin would be delivered to the Mahin home, as Mr. Mahin had ordered it done, because the mail carriers could not do otherwise than deliver mail to the person to whom it is addressed. Mr. Mahin has received letters from a number of concerns, where the city has been purchasing stock and appliances, in which regret at the council's action is expressed.

RHODIA ENGLISH IS DEAD

Passes Away After Several Months
Illness From Dropsy.

Miss Rhodia English, 71 years old, died this morning at four o'clock at the county asylum after a several months illness from dropsy of the heart. Although Miss English had been ill a long time her death was rather sudden as yesterday she was apparently in her usual health. Miss English had been at the county institution since last September. The funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon but the place of burial has not been determined.

Arlie M. Taylor, clerk of the circuit court, received word this morning that his brother, Dr. W. H. Taylor of Edinburg, is seriously ill with appendicitis.

JURY FINDS FOR W.E. MANNING

Holds Insurance Company is Bound by Agent's Acceptance of Dues
After Policy Lapsed.

ANDY YUNKER GETS JUDGMENT

Four Divorce Suits Are Set For Trial
In The Circuit Court Next Week.

Apparently holding that the insurance company was bound when its agent accepted premiums on a policy which had lapsed, the jury last night returned a verdict for $291.34 for the plaintiff in the case of William Manning, administrator of the estate of his daughter, Maxie W. Manning, age thirteen at her death, against the Public Savings Insurance Company of America.

The jury made its final return about nine o'clock. The delay in returning a verdict was the difficulty which the jury experienced in answering the interrogatories in the case. The jury attempted to report earlier in the evening, but when Judge Megee found that the jurors had not answered the interrogatories with the words "yes" or "no," but had attempted to explain, they were sent back to answer them as they should be.

The court today returned a finding and judgment for the plaintiff in the case of Andy Yunker against Jesse Harlow, on a note, demanding two hundred dollars. The decree in the case had not been prepared this afternoon. There was nothing else done in open court today. There are a number of important cases set for next week.

In answering the interrogatories in the Manning case, the jury found that Manning did not ask James Kratzer, agent for the insurance company, to pay the premiums on the policy of his daughter Maxie so as to help him through the winter. The jury further found that Kratzer, which was directly opposite to Kratzer's testimony, did not pay the premiums on the policy from December 18, 1911 to April 29, 1912, and that the sum Kratzer alleged he had paid for Manning did not amount to $8.40. The answer to one interrogatory was that the payments of Kratzer were not entered on the book.

In answering other interrogatories, the jury decided that Manning paid Kratzer forty cents June 17, 1912, which was the day before the girl died. The jury also found there were no entries of payments on the policy from April 29 to June 17.

Although the jury decided from the evidence that the district agent did not notify Manning that the policy would lapse June 1, it answered that Manning knew the policy would lapse when the premiums were in arrears four weeks, which was June 1. The jury found that Kratzer did not apply the forty cents Manning paid June 17 to premiums on revivals of three policies held on three other children of Manning.

There are four divorce suits set down for trial next week, two of which fall on Monday. The first one is that of Lafayette Conwell against Sue M. Conwell, a change of venue case coming here from Connersville. The Conwells are very prominent people.

The divorce case of Henry G. Wilson against Maggie Wilson is the second one to be tried Monday. The defendant has already defaulted and the prosecutor has been ordered to appear.

The third divorce suit of the week will be that of Anna Kirkpatrick against Jesse Kirkpatrick which is

JACKSON BILL GETS BY HOUSE

Measure For Which Rushville Man
Stood Sponser in Senate Ready
For Governor's Signature.

IT AUTHORIZES TRUSTEES

To Raise Money For Erecting Buildings For Agricultural Schools—
Soldiers' Bill Passes.

Senator Cary Jackson's bill, which authorizes township trustees to raise money for the erection of buildings for agricultural schools, was passed by the lower house of the legislature late yesterday with only two dissenting votes. The bill has already been passed in the upper house by an overwhelming vote and it now awaits the governor signature.

It is believed that the bill will go a long way toward instituting the teaching of agriculture in the schools. The school authorities in Indiana, especially those in townships outside of cities, never have power to raise money to equip or prepare for the teaching of agriculture.

Representative Crawford of Wayne and Fayette counties introduced the same bill in the lower house earlier in the season. The senate passed the Jackson bill first and it was sent to the house soon after the passage of the Crawford bill by that body. When it was explained that the two bills were the same the house passed it under suspension of the rules.

The house yesterday finally passed the bill appropriating $20,000 to send the old soldiers of Indiana to the Gettysburg battle ground next summer, and, in the words of its author, W. W. Spencer, "other amounts for incidental expenses," after it had failed to get a constitutional majority on the roll call on its passage. The bill provides that the state shall pay the railroad fares of the old soldiers on the trip next July, to attend the celebration to be held by union and confederate veterans at that point. Three civil war veterans in this county will be benefited if the bill becomes a law.

When the end of the roll call was reached the bill had only thirty-eight votes in its favor, instead of the fifty-one necessary to put it through. The absentees were called by the Speaker in the attempt to put the bill across, yet a few of the members who failed to appear in answer to the call for absentees were voted in the affirmative as "it was known" how they stood on the bill.

The bill has been shown great vitality on its way through the house, as it was once killed by the ways and means committee to which it was referred. Following this unfavorable report, W. W. Spencer had the bill sent back to the committee for reconsideration and this time it was favorable reported.

In the house yesterday afternoon, W. W. Spencer told the members in explaining the bill that the Governor was in favor of it and that the state should honor its old soldiers by passing it.

WILL OPEN MONDAY.

The few very mild cases of diphtheria prevailing at Spiceland have caused the health authorities to close the schools until Monday. A rigid investigation was made but nothing of a dangerous character was found. Dr. Wiggins, Henry county health officer, allayed all fears of an epidemic by saying that the people were unduly excited.

GOES OVER HORSE'S HEAD

Elmer Gillespie of Knightstown Suffers Broken Shoulder.

While exercising a horse Thursday at the Thayer livery barn Elmer Gillespie was thrown over the animal's head onto the cement walk in front of the barn. Mr. Gillespie struck on his shoulder, which was broken, and the injury is considered a very serious one. At the time of the accident the horse was going at a lively gait, when it suddenly "bucked," and braced itself so suddenly that Mr. Gillespie was unable to adjust himself to the "lost motion" of the animal.

INJURIES FATAL TO AGED FARMER

Wilson Ball Struck by I. & C. Car
Lives But 12 Hours After Accident.

BELIEVE HE WAS INTOXICATED

Wilson Ball, an aged and well known farmer, who was hit by an I. & C. car about four o'clock yesterday afternoon, near stop 37, twelve miles east of the city, died this morning at five o'clock in the Connersville hospital. He was lying on the south side of the track and the low-hanging part of the front truck struck his head. The car was in charge of Motorman Cary Gray and Conductor J. L. Alsop, and left this city at 3:20 o'clock. The injured man was placed on the car and taken to Connersville. The skull was fractured and he was not expected to live even as long as he did.

Stop 37 is near the Williams Creek fill and as the car approached the stop the motorman saw the man lying at one side of the track. Before he could stop the car Ball had been struck. A quart of whiskey and one bottle of beer were found in the possession of Ball and the traction officials believe he had just returned from Connersville and was intoxicated. This is also advanced for the reason of his being at the side of the track.

VICTIM OF WHITE PLAUGE.

Charles Hurst, age thirty-six years, brother of Mrs. Donnie Lewis of Carthage, is dead at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Hurst, in Fountaintown, after a long illness with tuberculosis. The funeral was held at the residence this afternoon and burial was made in the Fountaintown cemetery. He is survived by a widow, parents and four sisters.

MYSTERY IN THE SPEAKER'S ACT

Transfer of Trading Stamp Bill After Favorable Report Causes Comment in Legislature.

WHO WAS IT MADE A REQUEST

Is Revealed That Committee to Which it Was Sent is a
"Graveyard."

Comment has been caused by the action of Speaker Cook yesterday, without precedent in legislative annals, of taking the trading stamp bill away from a committee which had had a hearing and had reported it for passage, and referring it to the "graveyard of the house," says the Indianapolis News today.

This action had some mysterious features. The bill had been referred to Judiciary A. That committee held the hearing, and W. W. Spencer, Democratic floor leader, was the only member who opposed the bill. He put in a minority report to kill the bill.

Then the speaker took the bill from Judiciary A, ignoring its report, and sent the bill to Judiciary B. He said when the bill came over from the senate, he had been requested to send it to Judiciary B, and therefore in justice to that committee and in order to avoid hurting the feelings of Mr. Weisman, the chairman of Judiciary B, he would send the bill to that committee, and thus rectify the mistake he had made.

Now, it so happens that Speaker Cook does not recall just who it was that asked him to send it to Judiciary B. It was not Senator Gelts, the author of the bill. Senator Gelts says he does not care particularly what committee has the bill. He made no request that it be given to any particular committee in the house.

Speaker Cook says Gelts did not request him to send the bill to any particular committee, but that some one did. Just who did, he can not remember. Also after an assignment was given it in the house, some one who came over from the senate called his attention to the fact that the bill had gone to the wrong committee. Speaker Cook says he does not remember who it was that called his attention to this; neither does he remember whether it was the same man, who had requested in the first place that it be sent to the B. committee. He is unable to give any clew to the identity of this mysterious stranger, whose requests are of such weight that they should be followed, even though he is not the author of

The Power of Your Penny

Not so long ago the best buyer was the man or woman who could "dicker." The buyer and seller spent hours in arriving at a satisfactory price. In those days the buyer could never be certain of the quality.

Advertising has benefitted you in these two points, among other things. When you buy from THE DAILY REPUBLICAN'S advertisers you do not have to haggle about the price, nor worry your mind about the quality. Both are fixed, and the best to be had in the city.

The power of your penny is increased, and has a more certain value through your reading advertisements. By closely and constantly reading THE DAILY REPUBLICAN'S advertisements you can still further increase the buying power of your penny.

NO EARTHLY POWER CAN GOVERN THEM

This Is the Boast of British Suffragists.

London, Feb. 22.—Home Secretary Reginald McKenna, has not yet taken any action against the suffragettes for their recent outbreaks, in response to the growing public outcry, except to call for the reports of the inflammatory speeches made by Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst and the other leaders of the militants and perplexed inquiries of the permanent officials as to what on earth can be done.

In a speech at Chelsea Mrs. Pankhurst repeated the fiery language she used at Cardiff. She challenged the government to prosecute her as the instigator of the recent outrages and said among other things:

"You cannot govern us. If we refuse to be governed there is no power on earth that can govern us."

Admission to the Chelsea meeting was by ticket only, but some disturbers got in and made interruptions. One of these interrupters, when Mrs. Pankhurst asked: "How are you going to end it?" shouted out, "By putting you in the zoo."

There is still no legal proof of the culpability of the suffragettes in the bomb explosion at Lloyd George's house beyond Mrs. Pankhurst's boast at Cardiff.

The Standard asserts that the police have discovered a plot of the militants to kidnap members of the cabinet, in consequence of which the existing precautions for their protection will be increased.

Five suffragettes were sentenced on Friday to prison terms from four to six months. It is taken for granted that these women will immediately start a hunger strike and will as usual be released after a few weeks.

GUSTAVO MADERO

Brother of Deposed President
Victim of Mexican "Ley Fuga."

© 1913, by American Press Association.

MADERO'S LIFE TO BE SPARED BY VICTORS

Washington Exerts Influence In This Behalf.

Washington, Feb. 22.—President Taft is satisfied, from information received from Henry L. Wilson, ambassador to Mexico, that Francisco Madero, the deposed president of Mexico, will not be executed, as has been threatened since his downfall. This information is highly satisfactory to the president and the state department.

Ambassador Wilson informed the officers of the Huerta regime that he was of the opinion that the execution of Madero would produce a painful impression not only in the United States, but in other countries.

Serious resistance to the authority of the provisional government is feared at Vera Cruz. According to dispatches from Consul Canada at that city, the federal and local officers have united against recognition of the Huerta government.

The surmise in Washington regarding the situation at Vera Cruz is that the opposition of the Vera Cruz group may easily be overcome by the Huerta government if it adopts a conciliatory policy.

On the border there is great speculation as to what attitude the rebel leaders Salazar, Rojas and Campa, who formerly served under Orozco, will take toward the provisional government.

BABY BALED UP IN PAPER

Shocking Find at Detroit Points to a Horrid Murder.

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 22.—While workmen at a local paper company's plant were opening a bale of paper, they were horrified to find the body of a baby in the middle of a large package. It is believed that the baby was murdered and this unique way of disposing of the body adopted by the mother or whoever committed the crime. The body is that of a child about two weeks old. The police were at once notified and detectives have been detailed to make an investigation.

TERSE TELEGRAMS

The memorial and centennial at Put-In bay of the victory of Commodore Perry on Lake Erie will extend from July 4 to Oct. 5.

The agricultural appropriation bill as reported to the senate, carries an aggregate of $18,566,580, an increase of $250,000 as passed by the house.

Madero sent telegrams to all the Mexican state governors shortly before he was arrested, telling them that intervention by the United States had been ordered.

Bishop John Joseph Hogan of the diocese of western Missouri, the oldest Catholic prelate in this country, both in years and point of service, is dead at Kansas City at the age of eighty-four years.

Horse racing may be revived in the state of New York this year, the so-called directors' liability law which compelled the racing associations to close their gates in September, 1910, having been declared inoperative.

The appointment of M. Delcasse as French ambassador to Russia has created a near sensation in Germany. The Chauvinists interpret it as a blow to the fatherland. A big section of Austrians regard it as a blow at the triple alliance.

Personal friends of the White House family have given Mrs. Taft a diamond necklace of forty-nine stones of about a carat each, with a large diamond in the middle, the gift valued at about $15,000, and to the president a set of three pearl studs and a pearl-set stickpin, valued at $1,500.

LOOKED UPON AS AN INHUMAN ACT

This Is How America Would Regard Madero's Execution.

HUERTA GIVEN A STRAIGHT TIP

State Department Conveys Word to Provisional President That the Taking of the Life of the Deposed President by the New Government Would Be Most Reprehensible From the Viewpoint of Civilization.

Mexico City, Feb. 22.—The life of Francisco Madero may be saved by the protest of the United States government against the execution of the ex-president. Ambassador Wilson, directed by Secretary of State Knox, informed the provisional president, General Huerta, that the United States would regard the military execution of Madero as an inhuman act. Madero's fate still rests with the congress which is deliberating as to what course should be followed. General Huerta insists that whatever is done will be done legally, since civil authority has been restored. He has informed Senora Madero that the life of her husband is in no immediate danger.

There is no assurance among Madero's friends, however, that he will not meet the fate of his brother Gustavo. The federal courts now entertain three charges against the ex-president. He has been formally accused of murdering Colonel Riverol and General Reyes and of embezzling 6,000,000 pesos from the public treasury. These funds are being searched for by Huerta.

The government seems willing to overlook the killing of Lieutenant Colonel Riverol, but appears insistent that Madero be tried for the killing of the aged General Reyes, who was shot to death within the national palace by Madero's orders on the first day of the revolt. Ambassador Wilson has been told by General Huerta that the idea of inflicting summary military punishment has been abandoned.

While the people wait upon the government's decision regarding Madero, alarming reports have been received from the provinces as to revolts in four states against the temporary government. Dispatches received here say that Sonora, Agua Calientes, Coahuila and Nueva Leon have declined to recognize Huerta's authority and are preparing to fight. General Huerta and his cabinet are planning to send troops against the rebellious governors. Chihuahua is reported to be on the point of revolt, although the consul at Chihuahua telegraphs that General Babaga has recognized the new government and that Governor Abram Gonzales will be deposed. It was said that Alberto Madero and Governor Gonzales are already under arrest.

The government gives out that it is receiving the allegiance of rebel leaders. General Pascual Orozco will come to the capital with his friends, David De La Fuente and Garza Aldape, who have received cabinet portfolios. It is said also that General Zapata will consent to remain peaceful. Report has it, however, that General Ambrosio Figueroa, inspector general of rurales, has revolted and that he has 5,000 men in the state of Guerrero, who are well supplied with ammunition. General Figueroa refuses to recognize the new government, asserting that Madero was betrayed.

General Jose Velasco, commanding the federal troops at Vera Cruz, has repudiated Huerta and has taken the field in the interests of the deposed president. General Huerta has sent three trainloads of troops and four machine guns against Velasco.

There is a rumor in the capital that Juan Sanchez Azcona, who was private secretary to President Madero, has been executed at Puebla. Azcona, with Jesus Urueta, a Maderista deputy, was arrested while fleeing toward Vera Cruz. The report in circulation is that Azcona was made the victim of the "ley de fuga."

The new government has got under way. The American and foreign residents have returned to their homes and business is starting hopefully. It is believed that General Porfirio Diaz will soon arrive here, although nobody believes that he will again be a candidate for the presidency or that he will take an active part in public affairs.

OTHER SIDE OF THE STORY

A Couple of Actresses Airing Their Rivalries in Court.

New York, Feb. 22.—Alleging that her character has been defamed and that she has suffered loss of reputation through the charges made against her, Miss Florence Smythe, an actress, has filed suit against Mrs. Theodore Roberts, wife of a well-known actor, for $100,000 damages. This is the sequel to a suit brought a few days ago by Mrs. Roberts, who charged that Miss Smythe had alienated the affections of her husband, and asked $50,000 for that reason.

I 'MORTAL PLAINS OF TROY

May Be the Scene of Next Conflict In Balkan War.

London, Feb. 22.—The Dardanelles correspondent of the Daily Mail intimates the probability that one of the next scenes of conflict between the Turks and the allies will be on the immortal plains of Troy. The Turks are already intrenching there in order to resist an expected Greek advance from Bosika bay. Twelve thousand troops from Gallipoli have crossed to the Asiatic side, making the defensive force there now 15,000. They are bivouacking without tents on snow-covered grounds while biting winds are blowing, and are suffering severely.

All Good Frenchmen Rejoice.

GOVERNOR TAKES SENATE TO TASK

Wants to Know Why Utilities Bill Is Held Up.

PROMPT ACTION IS URGED

Pointing Out That the Matter Is Wholly in the Hands of the Majority Party and That No Objection Has Come From That Quarter, Governor Ralston Says People Are Entitled to Know Where the Trouble Lies.

Indianapolis, Feb. 22.—To enable the people of Indiana to get some idea of that which is being done in the senate caucus on the public utilities bill, Governor Ralston has issued a brief statement calling for a fight in the open on the floor of the senate for the preservation of the administration bill. The governor says:

"In view of the fact that the senate is overwhelmingly Democratic, and that no Democratic senator has declared against a utility law, and that all the minority members are giving out that they too are for such legislation, I wish the Democratic senators who stand for the right sort of legislation on this subject would favor calling off the caucus on the Shively-Spencer bill, so that the proposed amendments to it might be fought out in the open on the floor of the senate.

"The people are entitled to know where the Democratic party stands on this measure, and if this bill is to be amended before its passage so that it will be worthless as a law, or if it is to be killed, the people are entitled to know the influences that defeated the public bill."

Will Let People Decide.

The bill providing for the submission to the voters of Indiana at the general election in 1914 the question whether a constitutional convention is desirable, was passed in the senate. Seven senators opposed the measure—Senators Gavit and Hibberd, Progressives, and Senators Hunt, Jenkins, Ratts, White and Will R. Wood, Republicans.

The house bill providing for an appropriation of $10,000 additional for incasing battle flags of Indiana regiments, came up for passage, but on the statement of Senator Netterville, chairman of the finance committee, that the battle flag commission has not yet used all of its appropriation of two years ago, the consideration of the bill was postponed.

Considerable difficulty was encountered in obtaining the passage of Senator Yarlins' township high school bill. It provides for the establishment of township high schools and was passed by a vote of 28 to 10. It is stipulated that in townships having an assessed valuation of $600,000 and where there have been eight or more graduates from the elementary schools the township trustee may establish a high school. That is optional with the trustee, but it also provides that whenever a majority of the parents petition for a high school, it shall be the duty of the trustee to establish such high school.

The Fleming bill, making it optional with counties whether a primary or a delegate convention be held and retaining the state delegate convention, was passed in the house by a vote of 76 to 14. The Dickinson-Koenig bill, providing a nine-hour day and fifty-hour week for working women and girls, was passed, 65 to 24, and the housing bill, recommended for passage after being amended by the house committee on judiciary, was passed on second reading.

The Dickinson-Koenig bill is a substitute measure for the Keegan eight-hour measure, which was killed in the house, and the charge has been made on the floor that it was drafted merely to appease Mr. Keegan, who resigned from the assembly when his measure was killed and afterward declared that he would rather sit in a leper colony than in such a body of lawmakers.

Representative Deck's hog cholera serum bill, providing an annual appropriation of $25,000 for two years to Purdue university to be used for the extension of its facilities for preparing hog cholera serum, was passed, as was the uniform text-book bill for high schools, which passed without a dissenting vote after Representative Stahl had obtained an amendment which will permit the use of the conversational method of teaching German.

VERDICT IN VARNER CASE

Jury Takes Slain Man's Actions Into Consideration.

Princeton, Ind., Feb. 22.—The jury in the case of Thomas Varner, aged twenty-one, charged with the murder of Columbus Overton, a farmer, returned a manslaughter verdict. The jury took into consideration evidence brought out by the defense to the effect that Overton, a supposedly respectable farmer, was conducting a "blind tiger" and gambling joint at his home to which boys of the neighborhood were lured, that he had obtained Varner's money the night before, thrown him out and threatened him.

The American battleships will remain at Vera Cruz until the crisis has passed and peace in Mexico is definitely assured.

WANTS FUND TO FIGHT CHOLERA

State Veterinarian, In Annual Report, Advocates Appropriation to Prevent Loss to Farmers.

PURDUE EFFORTS INADEQUATE

300,000 Head of Swine Die in Indiana in One Year From This One Disease.

Hog cholera is epidemic in Indiana, according to the annual report of Dr. W. E. Coover, state veterinarian, which went to the printer Saturday. At least three hundred thousand head of swine have died within the last year from the disease and something radical should be done at once, the state official declares. His report is for the twelve months ending September 30, 1912.

Purdue university's efforts to combat the disease have been of value, but such efforts are absolutely inadequate to cope with the disease, the report says. An appropriation of $25,000 to fight the disease would unquestionably save millions of dollars worth of Hoosier hogs, the veterinarian believes. If such an appropriation were intelligently used 75 per cent of the hogs exposed to the disease or infected could be saved.

The eradication of sheep scab in the state was successfully accomplished, Dr. Coover says, at an expense to the state of $3,967.13.

"We found sheep scab in twenty counties, scattered over the state," the report states. "Many of the counties were quite badly infected, a few of them very slightly so. Those affected but little we found to be infected with sheep that had been imported into these counties, either from out of the state or from other counties, most of the importations being of very recent occurrence. We dispensed with government co-operation early in the year, feeling that the state was in a position to look after the matter without outside interference or assistance. At the present time we believe we have the disease under control."

"Tuberculosis is practically as prevalent as ever," the report says. "Four different slaughtering plants, upon complying with the requirements of this office, have been given permits to ship in cattle for immediate slaughter under federal or state supervision, from the southern quarantine districts. It is against the law to make such shipments without a permit, but, unfortunately, that section of the law prohibiting such shipments does not provide a penalty. This throws it up to the state to look after all outbreaks resulting from such diseased cattle and entails considerable expense and much work for the state."

The passage of the law, providing a penalty for such law violations is recommended. A sharp outbreak of tuberculosis in Vigo county, where a carload of infected cattle was wrecked and the animals ran over adjoining farms infecting other cattle, is reported. The prosecutions for shipping animals into the state illegally for breeding or dairy purposes are reviewed by the state official, who says he believes a change in the law should make it a felony for any one to so bring in such classes of cattle without having them first officially tested in the state from where shipped, the cattle tagged with the Indiana state tag, and a record of the test sent to the state veterinarian's office to be filed, or a permit be secured in writing from the state veterinarian, and that it be prohibited by law for any common carrier to bring into this state any such cattle unless accompanied by official certificates. The law now makes such offenses only misdemeanors.

Rabies is as prevalent, if not more so, than in former years, the report says, and the financial loss therefrom has been great. Glanders still exists, but not to the extent of former years. Establishments for the rendering of dead animals are objecting to the law prohibiting the carrying of animals that have died from hog cholera over the public highways, but the law is a good one, the official declares. In 90 per cent of the hogs examined, where tuberculosis was found, it was discovered that the hogs had followed cattle suffering from the disease.

We Should Worry.

The Republicans in the city of Rushville should worry about the coming city election. A comparison of votes reveals that the Republicans have as good a chance to carry the city in the coming election as they ever had. The scare about a Bull Moose ticket should be swallowed with a grain of salt at each taking.

The Republicans will enter the combat with a front as fortified and with a line as impregnable as in any previous city campaign. There is no occasion for any doubters. The figures will not lie. When it is considered that the third party polled very few votes within the city limits, and that not all of them came from the normal Republican vote, there is every reason for Republicans to be gratified over local conditions as they now appear.

It is impossible to give exact figures on the city alone, because the precinct lines take in the city and that part of Rushville township outside the city, according to the method of voting at the last general election, but from the poll and the vote an almost correct estimate can be made.

By figuring the vote of Beveridge, who got the highest vote on the Bull Moose ticket both in Rushville township and in the county, the vote of Durbin, who got the least number of votes on the Republican ticket in Rush county and Rushville township and the vote of Ralston, the Democratic candidate for governor, it is possible to make a fair estimate.

Durbin received in Rushville township 854 votes, Ralston 707 and Beveridge 313. In the city Durbin received 650 votes, Ralston 542 and Beveridge 243. The latter figures are estimated by taking off the estimated vote in the precincts that extend outside the corporate limits of Rushville.

It will readily be seen that Durbin had the plurality over Ralston of a hundred and eight votes. These figures are taken from the official vote. Another fact that should bring cheer to Republicans is that there was not a candidate on the Republican ticket who did not have a plurality in Rushville township or in the city of Rushville.

A comparison with former votes cast in Rushville will reveal to the pessimist that the Republican party suffered a very small loss in the city. According to the 1910 vote, Barnard, the Republican candidate for congress, received 971 votes and Gray, the Democratic candidate, 826 votes, which is a plurality of 145 votes for the Republican candidate.

At the last general election Risk, the Republican candidate for congress, received 894 votes and Gray, the Democratic candidate, received 786 votes. This places Risk's plurality at 108 votes. This reveals the pleasing fact that the Republicans in the city sustained a plurality loss of only 37 votes from 1910 to 1912.

One of the most important measures introduced at this session of the legislature is the bill creating a hygiene commission. The preamble says, "It is declared by high authority that hygiene can drive all infectious and contagious diseases from the earth," that it can "prevent more crime than any law," and that it can greatly reduce degeneracy, insanity, pauperism and idleness." The bill gives the governor power to appoint a commission of five to investigate the matter and report to the next general assembly with recommendations. Senator Frank Greenwell, M. D., of Allen county, introduced the bill, and the governor, lieutenant-governor and speaker of the house strongly favor it.

The prospect of having their prayers censored will probably keep a lot of ministers away from the State senate. It is not at all improbable that Lieut.-Gov. O'Neil will require future senate prayers shall be submitted in pamphlet form for his perusal before the preacher shall be allowed to offer the supplication at the opening of the chamber.

the bill, to the extent of taking the bill away from a committee, which has held a public hearing on it, and has thereafter drawn up a report and submitted it to the house.

The Gelts bill provides that every trading stamp shall have printed on it its cash value, and that it shall be optional with the person to whom the stamp is issued to have it redeemed by the issuer, either in cash or in merchandise. Representatives of trading stamp companies have been very active against the bill. These companies take hundreds of thousands of dollars out of the state every year, and they are fighting bitterly any proposal to regulate their business. Thus far no representative of a trading stamp company has been heard of who can see any merit in a trading stamp having a cash value, being redeemable in cash or being redeemable in any other way than as the trading stamp companies see fit to redeem it.

Judiciary B. it has often been declared in the house, should have been designated the "cemetery committee." There are some men on the committee who are active outside of the committee, but as a committee it has had attached to it the reputation of doing little except killing bills, letting them sleep in committee or recommending out bills introduced by its own members. Just what is wrong with the committee has not been figured out, but it has been common talk that there is something remarkable about its record.

Of the bills which have been referred to this committee the records of the house show that forty-two are still in its hands without any report having come from the committee. The next largest number of bills is that which the committee has decided should be killed. The number shown by the house records is thirty-six. Thirty-three bills, of which eight are bills which have passed the senate, have been recommended for passage.

What Our Neighbors Are Talking About

THOSE "LEPERS"

(Indianapolis News.)

A new bill relating to the working hours for women was introduced in the house yesterday as a substitute for the Keegan bill. There are, it seems, many members unwilling to vote for the Keegan bill, not so much because they object to the measure, as because it is Keegan's. It will perhaps be remembered that when the Marion county representative resigned he spoke of his associates in house as "lepers." Naturally, they resent such a characterization. One would think after reading certain comments on the Keegan case, that a Gladstone had resigned, and a government fallen. We have no doubt that the gentleman himself thinks that something very important has happened.

The legislature will, however, manage to get along. The indications now are that when it adjourns it will have a reasonably good record to its credit. Even the question of women's work is likely to be answered in a fairly satisfactory way. The new bill provides that no woman may work longer than nine hours in any one day, or longer than fifty hours a week. This is within two hours of the forty-eight-hour limit of the original bill. The new measure is fathered by two union labor members. On the whole the "lepers" are not doing so badly. The government still lives.

When the people elect a man to the legislature they do it in the belief that he will serve them, and with no idea that he will quit whenever things do not go to his liking. If this latter were the rule it would be impossible to have a legislature. There are in all organization men who are always resigning, or threatening to resign when they find that it is impossible for them to have their own way. Experience has, we think, proved that the best way to deal with them is to let them resign. It seems to us that this rule applies to Brother Keegan. It will hardly be contended that he is a statesman, and even if he were governments have survived the registrations of many statesmen. Even Bismark resigned once too often, learning, no doubt greatly to his surprise, that he was not indispensable. It will be so with Keegan.

Naturally they proceeded to dispatch the same and it was accomplished in a neat and workmanlike manner. Chesty over their unique feat, for it isn't everybody that can see a snake this time of the year, they marched into Milroytown and proclaimed publicly their almost unparalleled feat."

From Milroy, naturally dry by vote but which gets into the wet column occasionally by accident, emanates this yarn, says the Greensburg News. "Two well known men, whose reputation for veracity is unquestioned, report the slaughter on Thursday of a young snake, twenty-six inches in length. As it happened or at least the report reads, they were strolling down one of the country lanes that are manifest in the Milroy vicinity, when their optic powers were obscured by a vision of a snake crossing the roadway. Naturally they proceeded to dispatch the same and it was accomplished in a neat and workmanlike manner. Chesty over their unique feat, for it isn't everybody that can see a snake this time of the year, they marched into Milroytown and proclaimed publicly their almost unparalleled feat."

The German club will meet Tuesday evening with Orlando Simmes, 729 East Eighth street. A very enjoyable program has been arranged, and a good attendance is desired.

BASKETBALL.

One of the most interesting features of the Connersville-Rushville game was the curtain raiser. It was an interclass game played by the girls of the R. H. S. Following are the lineups:

Florence Nipp, center; Gladys Wallace and Adeline West, forwards; Katherine Hitt and Anna Carroll, guards.

Dorothy Frazee, center; Josephine Kelly and Freda Hiner, forwards; Marie Clawson and Pauline Felts, guards.

The former team, captioned by Miss Nipp, was the winner of the game. Gladys Wallace made a field goal and two foul throws for her side; Josephine Kelly made a foul throw for the losing team. The score was 4 to 1. Miss Baldwin officiated.

What promises to be one of the best basket ball games of the season will take place next Friday night when the local team plays a return game with the Milroy quintet. A few weeks ago the local team defeated the Milroy team by the narrow margin of one point, on the latter's floor. Milroy will be represented with a large bunch of rooters which will encourage their team on to victory.

IS NOT WELL ATTENDED BOY UNJUSTLY ACCUSED

Farmers' Institute at Knightstown Draws Very Poor Crowd.

The Tri-County Farmers Institute, which opened in Knightstown Thursday, was not very well attended by the farmers of either of the three counties interested. The program was excellent, and deserved a full house. The corn show and bread and butter exhibit, which was a side issue, attracted much attention, and there were a large number of contestants. In the corn classes there were 15 entries of yellow corn; 5 of white, and 2 of speckled. There were 23 loaves of bread, and 11 pounds of butter.

Reformatory Agents Hear of Underhand Work in Webber Case.

Indiana Reformatory agents who have investigated, feel that Roy Webber paroled by Judge Jackson, has not been given a square deal, it says the Knightstown Banner. It was charged that he carried a gun, pointed it at people, and threatened to "shoot up" this town. An investigation shows that he did nothing of the sort and that he was the object of very unjust work. It is understood that the one from whom the complaints came is not leading the right kind of a life and the chances are that a certain story relative to that person will be made the subject of an official investigation shortly.

Comparative Digestibility of Food

Made with different Baking Powders

From a Series of Elaborate Chemical Tests:

An equal quantity of bread (biscuit) was made with each of three different kinds of baking powder—cream of tartar, phosphate, and alum—and submitted separately to the action of the digestive fluid, each for the same length of time.

The relative percentage of the food digested is shown as follows:

Bread made with
Royal Cream of Tartar Powder:
100 Per Cent. Digested

Bread made with phosphate powder:
68 1/4 Per Cent. Digested

Bread made with alum powder:
67 3/4 Per Cent. Digested

These tests, which are absolutely reliable and unprejudiced, make plain a fact of great importance to everyone: Food raised with Royal, a cream of tartar Baking Powder, is shown to be entirely digestible, while the alum and phosphate powders are found to largely retard the digestion of the food made from them.

Undigested food is not only wasted food, but it is the source of very many bodily ailments.

Society News

Mrs. John Crayton of Falmouth entertained the C. W. B. M. auxiliary of the Fairview Christian church yesterday afternoon with a George Washington birthday party. The afternoon was devoted to music and guessing contests. Refreshments were served.

The Rushville chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution will celebrate Washington's birthday Tuesday, February 25, at the home of Mrs. Will Havens in West Second street. A silver offering will be received at the door. The guests will be entertained in the afternoon with solos, quartets and instrumental music. Men will be guests in the evening. The complete evening program will be furnished by Miss Norma Smith of this city and the Thomas sisters of Arlington.

One of the most delightful social events of the season was the Washington birthday reception-dance given at the Social Club last night. Over fifty couples were in attendance and the music was furnished by Farley's orchestra. The dance programs were of an attractive design carrying out the Washington's birthday idea. Light refreshments were served. The following from a distance were present: The Misses Florence Campbell and Genevieve Barger of Shelbyville, Miss Helen Douglas of Knightstown, Miss Ada Jacques of Connersville, Mr. and Mrs. Percy Brodbeck of Edinburg, Mr. and Mrs. George Bliss of Indianapolis.

The Phi Alpha Kappas, a business girls' club, entertained at the Rushville Christian association room, corner of Fourth and Main streets, last night with Washington's birthday party. There were more than thirty present. The hours were from eight to ten. The room was tastefully decorated with flags and red, white and blue predominated in the color scheme. A cherry tree, made by the girls, was also a part of the decorations. The evening was spent with games, guessing contests and music. The refreshments consisted of ice cream and cakes made in the shape of hearts. Mrs. Lon Link, who entertained the club once, was the only guest beside the members of their girl friends. The club originated when the business girls' Bible class was formed during the Biederwolf meetings.

SAYS THE MARTINS WERE IN BUGGY

Witness at Greenfield Declares he Saw Father and Son Day Cordia Escaped.

HISTORY OF UNUSUAL CASE

John Fulton and Neville Reeves were among the witnesses yesterday in the case of the state against Henry Martin for aiding Cordia Martin's escape from jail in Greenfield. They told of seeing a closed buggy near the home of Reeves stopped by Jesse Cox, then sheriff, and his deputy. The men in the closed buggy, Reeves and Fulton thought, were the two Martins.

Martin is the father of Cordia Martin, who was convicted in Marion county of robbing the New Palestine bank and later released from the state prison for trial in Hancock county, the supreme court rendering a decision that he should be tried in the county where the crime was committed. It was while in jail awaiting trial that he escaped from jail, the cells being unlocked by some person who procured the keys from the sheriff's kitchen. Following a court of inquiry and a grand jury investigation, Henry Martin was indicted on the charge of conspiring to commit a felony and released on bail. He entered a plea of not guilty. Cordia Martin is still at large.

Amusements

The Princess will show a Lubin drama, "That Wonderful One Horse Shea" for the first picture tonight. It is said to be a very beautiful production. The other is a Vitagraph comedy "All for a Girl."

The Palace offers a Nestor film "Betty's Bandit" for the first picture tonight. "Joe, the Pirate" is the title of the other, an Imp drama. Both are said to be good pictures.

In the realistic Fair Scene of Aborn's big spectacular production of "The Bohemian Girl," which comes to the Auditorium, Connersville, Tuesday, March 4, there is said to be introduced a band of the most marvelous acrobats that have ever been seen in this country. They are owing to their astonishing rapidity, known as the whirlwinds. These acrobats are usually called Arabs, but are said to be Berbers, who are much like Egyptians, and descendants of ancient Jewish tribes, that wandered into northern Africa before the Christian era. Their language is Semitic and their religion Mohammedan. They were brought to this country by Hassen Ben Ali who is a potentate in his own country. His title is Sheik, which corresponds to Baron in European countries. Sheik Hassen Ben Ali is not only a ruler of the province of Anguara. Hassen Ben Ali, is a native of Arabia, and has been in the United States more than twenty years. He made a special trip to the land of his birth in order to secure the present group of whirlwinds. His previous troupe it is claimed all perished in the American climate.

CHAPTER XIII.

Four Being No Company.

Happy in his newly-found domestic delights, Mr. Rawn was perhaps more careless than otherwise he would have been regarding business affairs, and that at a time when they needed care. The truth was that matters still lagged at the factory, as Rawn ought to have known. Indeed, he did know; but always his curious helplessness in regard to Halsey—who alone knew the last secrets of the most intricate devices of the company's property—continued to oppress him. And always here was his wife to console him and to interest him.

The distance between Graystone Hall and the factory apparently was becoming greater from month to month. Sometimes Halsey came to visit his wife, but these visits of late became fewer and fewer, as that lady became more and more discontented, less and less eager to receive the attentions of him who had so signally failed to place her where Virginia sat in power. This alone left Halsey none too happy himself at the prospect of any of his perfunctory calls; and moreover, he found himself expected now to be more careful in his attire. In his conduct about Graystone Hall, where full evening dress tacitly was desired at dinner, and where an aristocratic chill was habitual at any hour; things not customary in Ann Sullivan's household on the factory side of the city. Not that Halsey needed to excite social misgivings. He was a clean-faced, manly chap, lean, sinewy and strong, and might, save for his rather toll-marked hands, have passed for any of the throng of young men who at times came under one pretense or other to visit Mr.—and Mrs.—Rawn.

These, in company with Grace, he one evening found alone, seated on the wide gallery that overlooked the lake front. He did notice then, as he never before at any time had noticed, a singular truth—Virginia Rawn's eyes seemed almost reluctant to leave him. He was half her husband's age. Moreover, there was something in the somber glow of his eye, in the occasional look of his face—rapt, absorbed, remote, pondering on things not made patent to all about him—which held for her ever a stronger fascination. She wondered if things were known in his philosophy no longer reckoned in her own; but which once might have been germane to her as well. She often looked at him.

The evening was clear and cool, the lake stirred with no more than a gentle breeze. The silver ladder of the moon's light was flung down across the gently moving waters. The breath of flowers was all about. Calm, ease, assuredness were here. The voice of the hostess was delightfully low and sweet. All things seemed in keeping. Rawn welcomed his son-in-law with his customary largeness of air. "Come on out, Charles," said he, "join us; the evening is pleasant. Won't you have a cigar?" He fetched with his own hands the box of weeds—"Take several, my boy, take as many as you like. I give two dollars apiece for those by the box at my club, and you can't beat them in the city or anywhere else."

Halsey listened almost absent-mindedly, and Rawn returned to his seat near his wife, a little apart on the gallery. The master of Graystone Hall was intoxicated more than usually this evening with her. She sat now in the dim light, a cool, dainty and beautiful picture, in blue and ivory Duchesse satin and filmy laces, gowned fit for a wedding or a ball, as she always was of an evening at home, with just a gem gleaming here and there in the occasional glimpse of light which broke through the windows at the back of the gallery as their curtains shifted in the breeze. At that moment John Rawn would have been glad to have the entire world share boxes of cigars with him. John Rawn, collector—what man on all the North Shore Drive at that moment could claim such surroundings as these?

"I thank you, Mr. Rawn," said Halsey, taking a single cigar from the box which his host had placed upon the near-by tabouret. "I think I'll be content with one. I mustn't get into bad habits; I'm afraid Jim Sullivan and I can't afford them at two dollars apiece just yet!"

He moved now quietly and dutifully apart toward the end of the gallery where sat a less resplendent figure, that of his wife, Grace. She had not risen to meet him.

"Well," said he, as he sank into a seat beside her.

"Well, then?" she answered, and turned upon him a face dour, inexpressive, pasty, almost frowning.

"Is that all you have to say to me?" he began later, as he sat smoking.

"I haven't had much chance yet," he commented.

"No, I should say not! This is the first time you've been here for four weeks! Have you stopped to think of that? You seem to care little enough how I get on!"

Halsey paused for a moment before replying. "That hardly seems fair to me."

"Why isn't it fair? It's the truth."

"Well, I've been busy all the time as you know. Besides again, when it comes to that, it doesn't seem to me that you've been altogether anxious to have me come."

"You talk as though you worked day and night and had nothing else to do."

"Well, I suppose I could come over—every night after dinner—wash the soot and the cinders from me, get out my four-hundred-dollar go-cart, and come over here to call on my wife in my thirty-dollar evening togs, couldn't I? She lives in Graystone Hall. Where do I live? What do I get out of life, when it comes to that, Grace? When I do come here, you begin to nag me before I get settled down. I always used to say when I was a young man, that if I ever found myself married to a nagging woman, I'd just quit her!"

"What do you mean by that?" she demanded imperiously.

Again Halsey was deliberate, although he half sighed as he replied: "Pretty much what I say, Mrs. Halsey, since you ask me. The truth is, you quit me when I needed you. I have had worry enough from this business at the factory. I don't particularly care to have all other kinds of worry on top of that. You had all this place to fall back on. Your father's taken care of you. But he hasn't taken care of me very well. The fact is, I've been scapegoat about long enough!"

"You seem to have learned the factory ways of talking!"

"Yes, I don't know but I am rather plain, and common, and vulgar. It's a little different here—even from Kelly Row, let alone our place on the West Side. I fancy you're getting the North Shore accent, along with other things—it all only means that we're that much further apart, Grace. Did you ever stop to think of that?"

"I've had time to think of plenty of things," she answered bitterly.

"You had plenty of time to think of some of them before you came over here," he rejoined. "You didn't like what your husband could offer you, and you chose something better which your father did offer you. You've quit me, practically. You've not been in our home twice since you came to live here. I've seen that poor baby of ours only once in a while since you left our home for this. You've not been a wife to me. That's the truth about it—I might as well not be married! That comes mighty near being the situation, since you put it up to me to answer."

"Then what do you mean?"

"The courts would make it a case of desertion, if you force me to say that," answered Halsey. "Now, I don't want to live on this way for ever! I'm a young man, and my career's ahead of me! I've got to choose regarding my life before long! And I'm going to choose. I'm not going to let things run on in this way any further."

"That's what my father always said! Your career, your life! Where does your wife come in?"

"You come in precisely where you say you want to come in, Grace. We get what we earn in this world. If you leave me and take up a life which I can't share, if you leave my house and don't care for what I can give you—why there's not much left to talk about as to where you come in. You come in here. I belong over there."

"You're selfish! All men are, I think."

"I'm not going to argue about that in the least, Grace, except to say that it's the Rawn half of you that said that. The Rawn half of you can't see anything but its own part of the world. It wasn't the Rawn half of you that I married. You were different, then. You're not much like your mother, Grace! And I married the part of you that was like your mother. She was a good woman, and a good wife. "You must not speak of her!" "Oh, yes, I must, and I shall when I like. It's all in evidence. There's the record." He nodded toward the two dim figures at the other end of the gallery. "She's very beautiful, yes, very beautiful!" His eyes lingered on the figure of Virginia Rawn, faintly outlined, cool in satin and laces. "She'd like to hear you say that!" sneered the wife.

"I perceive, my dear, that you two love each other very much. But as I was saying, you don't seem to me, Grace, to be much like your own mother—you're more like your stepmother, over there, in some ways. Your mother didn't change. She made good—if you'll let me use some more factory slang—on the old ways, on her own old lines. That's what I call class, breeding, blood, if you like—just plain North American sincerity and simplicity. She didn't pretend, she didn't try to climb where she knew she couldn't go. That's what I call blood!"

"Thank you! You're sincere also, at least."

He seemed not to hear her. He went on. But you've changed. You dropped me. Your head was turned with all this sort of thing. Since these things are true, are you coming back to me?" He found himself wrenching his eyes away from the cool, dim figure far down the long gallery.

She straightened up suddenly, pale. "Back!—to that? To live in that hole—?"

"Yes, just back to that, Grace. It's all I have to offer you. Just that hole."

"I'm not happy here."

"Then why do you stay here? Why don't you come back to me?"

"Because I couldn't be happy over there any more, either! I know it. I admit it. It's got me—I couldn't go back to the old ways, the ways we'd have to live. Why can't you come here—why doesn't Pa give us money enough—?"

He turned to her now gravely. "I suppose it's the pace—yes, it's got you, and a lot of others. But I'm not taking that sort of money just yet. And that doesn't answer my question. I've come over to-night to arrive at some understanding about us two. I want to know where I am. There are going to be changes, one way or another."

She turned to him suddenly again. "What's wrong over at that factory, Charley?" she asked. "Why haven't you made good before this? My father has been on the point of tearing up things a dozen times! He's sore at you—awfully sore."

"Yes? How do you know I haven't made good?"

"Then why has Pa talked so?"

"For the very good reason that he doesn't know any better than to talk that way. He hasn't got any more sense. He didn't talk that way to me."

"Then you have got it—you've made the discovery—it'll work!"

"Our machines not only will work, but have been working," said he calmly. "I haven't seen fit to tell your father. I'm going to tell you, however, that all this was my idea from the first. If I haven't been a competent manager, let him get some one more competent. I'll take what I know with me in my own head. I'm saying to you, his daughter, that I worked out this idea, myself, and all he did was to get the money in the first place for it. For that reason I call this discovery mine, to do with as I like. I haven't been bought and paid for, myself. I don't want money when it costs too much. I've just begun to understand things lately."

"Yes, I've worked it out into practical form," he concluded, as she sat silent. "Your father never did and never can. He's got to come to me, to me, right here. Since you drive me to it, I'll just tell you one thing. I've had this whole thing in my own hands for more than eight months! The company doesn't know it, he doesn't know it, no one knows it. ther has been on the point of tearing up things a dozen times! He's sore at you—awfully sore."

"Yes? How do you know I haven't made good?"

"Then why has Pa talked so?"

"For the very good reason that he doesn't know any better than to talk that way. He hasn't got any more sense. He didn't talk that way to me."

"Then you have got it—you've made the discovery—it'll work!"

"Our machines not only will work, but have been working," said he calmly. "I haven't seen fit to tell your father. I'm going to tell you, however, that all this was my idea from the first. If I haven't been a competent manager, let him get some one more competent. I'll take what I know with me in my own head. I'm saying to you, his daughter, that I worked out this idea, myself, and all he did was to get the money in the first place for it. For that reason I call this discovery mine, to do with as I like. I haven't been bought and paid for, myself. I don't want money when it costs too much. I've just begun to understand things lately."

DREAD DISEASE OF TRACHOMA IS REPORTED INVADING THE U.S.

Infection Fought on All Frontiers Now Found In Interior.

Kentucky Mountaineers Who Live In Bad Surroundings Suffer Most.

FOLLOWING is the startling report made by the Survey, a publication of New York: "An enemy which the United States has fought at ports of entry and on its far frontiers has suddenly appeared in our very midst. The dread invader is trachoma. Its victims we have long seen among Alaskan natives, our own reservation Indians and the immigrants at our gates. But now we find that the disease has stolen a march on us and made our own American stock its prey. The foothold it has gained puts it in a position to menace the nation."

"Down in the beautiful mountains of Kentucky live a people of the purest American ancestry. Stalwart, brave, enduring, unmixed with other blood, they show the sturdiness of the pioneers who followed Boone to the virgin wilds beyond the ranges. The mighty train of American development has swept by, leaving them sidetracked, forgotten, neglected, in the hills of their adoption, an unknown people in the midst of a busy, careless nation."

"The poorer among them live for the most part in small and sparsely scattered log cabins. Families number usually ten to fifteen members, all of whom eat, sleep and live together in the one room of the cabin. The common wash basin outside the door is often a large stone with a hollow in its surface, difficult to empty or to clean. To this each user contributes his share of germs. Hanging next to it is the large family towel, which is on duty for days in succession."

Live In Windowless Cabins.

"Cabin have no windows at all or small ones at best, and all openings are scrupulously closed at night in the winter time. Ventilation is of the poorest at any time. Close intermarriage, lack of even rudimentary sanitation and monotonous, ill suited diet predispose children to many ills, including tuberculosis and other infectious diseases. Ringworm of the scalp, uncorrected defects of vision, adenoids and enlarged tonsils and hookworm infection are common. The unkempt and neglected condition of these children is pitiable. Many are mentally backward and defective. The typical mountaineer, however, is usually intelligent and wide awake even though illiterate."

"The social and economic needs of these mountaineers of Kentucky, Tennessee, Carolina and Virginia are beginning to be recognized. But it has remained for Dr. John McMullen of the federal public health service to call attention to a most serious danger now menacing them. In a recent investigation he found trachoma present to an alarming and unsuspected degree and the blindness and defective vision resulting from it responsible for an incalculable impairment of social, economic and intellectual efficiency."

Trachoma a Communicable Ill.

"Trachoma is a communicable disease of the eyelids which, if untreated, usually progresses to blindness and practically always causes interference with vision. Among 4,000 persons examined Dr. McMullen found that 500, or 12 1/2 per cent, had trachoma. From 3 to 18 per cent of the school children were affected. One of the important factors in the spread of the disease is the common family towel. Most of

PROPOSES TO DR. ANNA SHAW IN MIDST OF HER SPEECH

Suffragists' Meeting Thrown Into Chaos by Man's Bold Act.

A meeting of suffragettes at the Danielson theater, Danielson, Conn., recently was thrown into confusion when a farmer from Mechanicsville, who said he was John Frisbie, interrupted Dr. Anna Howard Shaw of the National Suffragette association in the middle of her address and coolly proposed marriage to her.

"Just a minute," cried Frisbie, interrupting the suffragette leader; "I have been a widower for eighteen years. Will you marry me and make me happy?"

Dr. Shaw was quite evidently unnerved and stood speechless for a moment or two. Then she recovered her faculties.

"I don't want a wedding ring. All I want is the vote," she cried dramatically.

TAR SOLED SHOES AGED 20.

New London Man Wears Footgear For Years and Years.

Twenty years ago Alderman Charles E. Perkins of New London, Conn., had a pair of square toed shoes made. He treated the soles to a special preparation of tar. Then he wore the shoes steadily for six years.

After a few years' vacation they were brought out and saw daily use for three years. Then Perkins had them topped and put them away. Now he's wearing them again.

the cases receive no treatment, and each case becomes a local focus of contagion. It appears that the disease must be of long standing in these mountains and that it is getting progressively worse.

"Trachoma is chronic and persistent. Treatment for it must be long continued and carried on with unremitting care. To prevent its spread among the southern mountaineers Dr. McMullen emphasizes the need of a campaign to show the importance of sanitation, fresh air, clean homes and personal hygiene. Stereopticon lectures in public buildings and schools will help. Visiting nurses and social workers are needed to preach the gospel of sanitation in the individual home. Other social agencies must be organized to include the entire affected territory. Especially among school children cases of trachoma should be isolated. Schools must be properly lighted and ventilated."

Need of Public Clinics.

"Actual care and cure of existing cases offer the greatest problem. Public clinics ought to be established similar to the one now conducted by Dr. J. A. Stucky under the auspices of the W. C. T. U. settlement school at Hindman, Ky. Movable field hospitals in connection with these clinics could afford surgical treatment to cases requiring it. The same cases and territory should be covered periodically by district visiting nurses. Great patience and long continued effort, as well as much money, will be needed to eradicate trachoma from these mountains. But with perseverance and enthusiasm the task can be accomplished."

"Trachoma has been found most destructive among the American Indians, particularly among those leading a reservation life. In some of the reservations in the southwest trachoma is found in 65 per cent of the Indians. Over 6,000 Indians were treated in 1911 for trachoma, and at the trachoma hospital of the Indian service at Phoenix, Ariz., over 800 were operated upon and treated."

Diseases of Alaskan Indians.

"Dr. M. H. Foster in a report to the secretary of the treasury on Jan. 23 stated that of 1,364 Alaskan natives examined by him 15.6 per cent had some eye trouble, and 7.2 per cent from all parts of Alaska suffered from trachoma. In some sections of the southwestern portion of Alaska the disease was present in 25 per cent of the native population. Dr. Foster urged the great need of a government home for blind natives in Alaska and the provision of some trade or occupation to relieve their present pitiful condition."

"Among immigrants 2,504 cases of trachoma were certified in the fiscal year 1911. At Ellis island alone 718 cases were certified. Considering the pitiful conditions into which the disease throws its victims, the serious extent to which it is already prevalent in the country and its economic and social menace, effort to prevent the entrance of new cases and the establishment of new foci of contagion becomes imperative."

"Trachoma has been shown to be a public health problem of national concern. Prompt, persistent and energetic measures must be undertaken by local, state and national health officers to check its further spread and to eradicate it where it is already present."

BREED OF HUGE RABBITS AFFECTS THE FUR TRADE.

Giant Bunnies Are Seen at International Farmyard Show at Paris.

The grand annual international farmyard show was held recently in the Grand palace of the Champs Elysees. It was the most important and interesting held for many years, containing 5,000 lots, exhibited by 900 producers.

A great feature of the show was the object lesson presented by a new race of gigantic rabbits of silver gray color, many of which weigh twenty-eight pounds and for breeding purposes fetch $20 to $30 apiece. These huge bunnies are revolutionizing the Paris fur trade for fashionable winter garments, muffs, trimmings, etc.

The best specimens of these wonderful evolutions of Br'er Rabbit are raised in Normandy and in Burgundy, and only a skilled expert can detect the difference between their skins and those of costly animals from Siberia and Alaska.

Never before either has such a rich variety of pigeons been seen in Paris. The section of golden pheasants is one of particularly dazzling brilliancy.

DOCTOR FORGOT LAWYER'S NAME

Who Was It Offered $20,000 Thaw Bribe?

GOV. SULZER WANTS TO KNOW

Sensational Charge Admitted by the Superintendent of Matteawan Hospital That a Lawyer Had Offered Him a Good Big Sum For Harry Thaw's Release Will Be Probed to the Bottom by the Authorities.

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 22.—According to his own testimony before the Sulzer committee of inquiry, a bribe of $20,000 to release Harry K. Thaw from the Matteawan state hospital for the criminal insane was offered to Dr. John Russell, the superintendent of the institution, last November, according to his own testimony before the committee, last November. This was the result of a charge that William E. Clark, a friend of Governor Sulzer and secretary of the probe committee, had tried to influence Dr. Russell and Dr. James May, the president of the state hospital committee, to give Harry Thaw his freedom.

Thaw can only be released upon a supreme court order or through a certificate signed by Dr. Russell that he has recovered his mental balance.

It is this certificate of recovery which Dr. Russell says an attempt was made to bribe him to give.

Governor Sulzer said that Dr. May saw him a week or ten days ago and said that Dr. Russell had been endeavoring to get Dr. May to use his influence toward Thaw's release. The governor told Dr. May that no one was authorized to use his name in connection with the Thaw case, and then sent for Mr. Clark.

"Mr. Clark denied that he had been using my name in connection with the Thaw case," said the governor, "and I let it go at that."

When Governor Sulzer's attention was called to the fact that Dr. Russell could not remember the name of the lawyer who attempted to bribe him, he said:

"Dr. Russell ought to be compelled to disclose the name."

John H. Delaney, one of the members of the probe committee, and Mr. Clark stated that a Jewish lawyer of New York city had $25,000 to give Dr. Russell and that $20,000 had been given to Dr. Russell upon condition that Thaw would be released before the end of December last. The story goes on that when Governor Sulzer assumed office in January Thaw had not been released and that Dr. Russell returned $11,000 to the Thaws through Detective Hoffman of Poughkeepsie, according to Mr. Clark. As near as could be learned, neither Mr. Clark nor the members of the probe committee yet know the name of the New York lawyer who represented the Thaw family in this transaction.

In his testimony Dr. Russell admitted that he told Superintendent of Prisons J. F. Scott of the attempt to bribe him. Dr. Russell is an appointee of the state superintendent of prisons. Governor Sulzer stated that Colonel Scott had never informed him of the Dr. Russell attempted bribery admissions. Dr. Russell stated the offer if made by the lawyer of $20,000 to release Thaw was made in an uptown hotel. He could not recall the name of the hotel. The offer was made last November, after the last attempt to release Thaw proved unsuccessful. The investigation will be continued and an effort made to ascertain the identity of the man who offered the bribe.

THEY PICKED A DARK HORSE

West Virginia Senatorial Squabble Settled by Compromise.

Charleston, W. Va., Feb. 22.—Federal Judge Nathan B. Goff was elected United States senator from West Virginia by the legislature in joint session. His election followed the bribery scandal of the last two weeks, in which six members of the legislature have been arrested on charges of giving or receiving bribes in the senatorial fight. One candidate also was arrested, but later released.

Judge Goff received all the Republican votes cast. The Democrats with few exceptions voted for Clarence W. Watson. None of the six members of the legislature against whom charges of bribery are pending took part in the session.

Judge Goff will succeed Senator Clarence W. Watson for the six-year term beginning March 4, 1913.

New York, Feb. 22.—Though the strikes of the white goods workers and kimono and wrapper makers are over, except in a few individual shops, there are still about 60,000 of the workers on men's and boys' garments on strike, and this strike continues to show possibilities of trouble.

Indiana May Proceed to Alter Her Constitution.

Indianapolis, Feb. 22.—In an unanimous opinion the supreme court holds "that the amendment before us (the lawyers' qualification amendment to the Indiana constitution), was rejected by the vote at the general election in 1910. The amendment having been rejected the way is clear and open for the proposal of such amendments to the constitution as the general assembly may feel that the people demand."

The decision is made in reversing the Marion circuit in refusing to admit Charles W. Boswell to practice law in the Marion circuit court. The case was really started and prosecuted as a test case to obtain the supreme court's opinion relative to the adoption of the lawyers' qualification amendment to the constitution by the election of 1910. At this election the question of the amendment of the constitution was submitted and the vote stood 60,357 for the amendment and 18,494 against, but there were 627,133 voters who voted for state officers at the election, the great majority of whom neglected to vote on the constitutional amendment.

LOCALS WERE EASY FOR CONNERSVILLE

Rushville High School Basket Ball

Team Lost by Score of 28 to 13.

VISITORS IN LEAD ALL TIME

The Rushville high school team dropped another game last night. This time it was the Connersville team that turned the trick. The score was 28 to 13. The game was devoid of any sensational playing and Connersville won because it had the best team. The visitors took an early lead and were never headed. The first half ended 14 to 6. The locals played hard and put up a good fight but were outclassed. The Rushville team threw only three field goals during the game, the rest of the points being scored on free throws. For Connersville, Castleman, the colored player was the star. He played at the guard position last night and put up a fine game. His regular position is at center. Hinkle and Griffin played the best game for Rushville. The lineup and summary:

Rushville	Position	Connersville
Cameron	Forward	Myers
Hinkle	Forward	Pinkerton
Webb	Forward	Wadsworth
Roam, Frazer	Center	Pollmon
Griffin	Guard	Castleman
	Guard
Field goals—Pinkerton 3, Castleman 4, Hinkle 2, Roam, Myers.
Foul goals—Castleman 10, Griffin 7. Referee, Ochiltree.

SAYS JIM IS A CANDIDATE

List Shows Local Man Applicant For Internal Revenue Job.

Some time ago it was rumored that James Casady, vice-chairman of the Democratic county central committee and circuit court bailiff, was a candidate for appointment as one of the deputy internal revenue collectors in Indiana. He denied the story and declared that if he were a candidate, he knew nothing of it. The Indianapolis News publishes a revised list of all Indiana candidates for appointment, and in the list appears the name of Mr. Casady. The position is a civil service appointment except in the case of deputies receiving less than $300 a year.

NOW KID M'COY TURNS PREACHER

Man Who Put Rush County on Pugnistic Map Goes in For Evangelistic Work.

TO PREACH GOSPEL OF HEALTH

Says he Was Converted by an Editorial and Vows to Forget Former Life.

Kid McCoy, whose real name is Norman Selby, who put Rush county on the map as the home of a heavy-weight pugilist, has become an evangelist according to a New York dispatch to the Indianapolis News. McCoy will preach the gospel of health at the public forums which the social center movement aims to establish in the public school-houses outside of school hours. A strenuous campaign has been started by Mrs. David Kirk, widow of a Pittsburgh millionaire, to have the buildings utilized in this way. She is receiving encouragement from the board of education.

Selby will be heard from the first time in his new role at public school No. 41. He promised "some wallops" that will eclipse the famous "cork-screw punch" that won him many victories as a fighter. He declared that his determination to forget his career as pugilist, hobo and saloon keeper and become an evangelist was the result of reading an editorial telling how five thousand human beings die needlessly every day.

"I made up my mind that I would do what I could to promote rational living and uplift humanity," he says. "I want to wake up the powers that are lying dormant in the human mind. People would use them if they understood. First of all I want to teach them that health is the center of everything worth while. It is that harmonious condition of the body and mind which enables the physical organs to perform their functions properly and which develops the positive qualities of mental and physical man to a marked degree.

"Opportunity does not make the man. There is good and bad in everybody. The hero of any time was always a hero, but if it had not been for the opportunity which came to him people might never have heard of him at all. Still, the good was there just the same. The trouble is that people are always looking for the bad in others instead of for the good.

"I believe in love and kindness; also that there was a man named Jesus Christ, and I think He was the greatest philosopher and preacher the world has ever known. I think likewise of Mrs. Eddy as a woman, although I have not gone so far yet as to embrace Christian Science.

"The power of love and kindness is what rules the world. We tame dumb animals with kindness. Who would harm the hand that carries him or laugh at the mother's affection for her child? That feeling is shown among animals, and our power of reason puts us above the animal kingdom."

Selby said that he was having a series of maxims printed and preparing a course of breathing exercises in connection with which he will give demonstrations.

"Exercise is one of the prime necessities of man, but it is not necessary to go to the extent of exercising your muscles all the time unless you are training for a contest of strength. All the exercise the average man needs is the development of his lung power. The action of the lungs reacts all over the body. Forceful breathing produces forceful blood circulation, and forceful blood circulation produces hearty tissues."

PINES FOR HOME.

Indianapolis News: Representative Norris, of Rush, is about ready to return to his home. "I have lost every bill I introduced," said Mr. Norris, "but I am not discouraged, though I am very much in favor of a short session of the legislature. I won't be sorry when I get back to dear old Rush county."

Sugar Sugar

Do You Know That There Is a Vast Difference in Sugar?

Cane sugar is far superior to that made from the sugar beet. It is much sweeter and purer. If you melt a small amount of each, the cane sugar syrup will remain clear, but a scum of impurities will cover the syrup from the beet sugar. The best cane sugar costs more but is worth more. However, for those who prefer the cheaper grade we have beet sugar at $1.15 for 25 lbs.
